President's Message

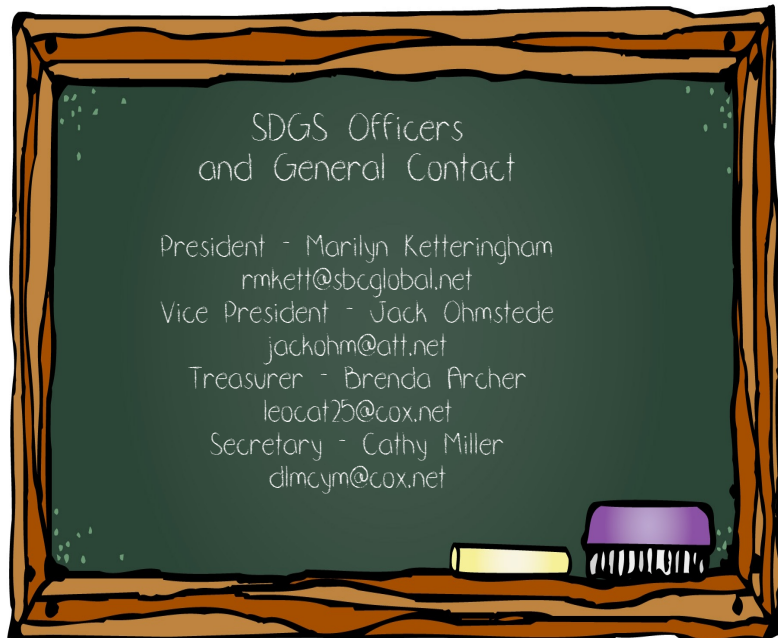

Last month I borrowed Robin Parer's book "Hardy Geraniums" from our Library. I thought I would read it through this August while it was too hot to go work in the garden.

I discovered that the flowers we have been enjoying are really Pelargoniums. No wonder I have never taken home a blue geranium. True Geraniums are propagated with roots, tubers and little "nubs". They are light pink, purple and blue! There are hundreds of varieties. Ms. Parer provides information on Nurseries and Growers with their e-addresses and pictures of the flowers with their proper names.

I have ordered some, and will report back to you how they arrive, survive and bloom in San Diego.

The Ohmstede's have returned, and will present a slide show on the two beautiful gardens they visited while in Vale, Colorado, at our next meeting. I'm looking forward to that, and to seeing you then!
